Section 6 – Sample shipment

To be admitted to the competition each participant must submit 2 labelled bottles of each product entered to the secretariat of SPIRITS SELECTION BY CONCOURS MONDIAL DE BRUXELLES, Vinopres-Spirits, rue de Mérode 60, B-1060 Brussels, Belgium, before July 15, 2023.

These samples must be addressed direct (shipping, customs and taxes paid by the sender).

They must be sent along with:

→ A pro forma invoice stating: Samples without commercial value Excise O under EEC Regulation No. 2913/92 of 12/10/92; Samples that arrive late, that have not been registered properly (section 4) or that do not match the registered product will not be entered in the competition or returned.

Section 7 – Inspection and storage of samples received

SPIRITS SELECTION BY CONCOURS MONDIAL DE BRUXELLES checks the shipments of spirits received and the official accompanying documents, corrects any possible errors and rejects entries that are not compliant. The organizers can therefore request the necessary laboratory analysis of the specific product.

They emphasise the need for correct use of appellations of origin and geographical denominations.

The labelling of products made in EU member states must comply with Community RULES OF ENTRY OPTIONS, and for other countries, it must comply with RULES OF ENTRY OPTIONS in force in the country of production. Entries are then divided up according to the characteristics on the declarations provided in section 4 or, where appropriate, obvious characteristics.

The organizers will store the entries in a secure place in temperature and atmospheric conditions that guarantee their safe storage.

SPIRITS SELECTION BY CONCOURS MONDIAL DE BRUXELLES will control award-winning spirits by comparing a selection of products with an anonymously-bought sample from the same batch. A certified laboratory ('COFRAC' French norm) will be in charge of the comparative analysis and the comparative tasting (by a panel of independent spirits experts). In the event of contentious issues or proven differences, SPIRITS SELECTION BY CONCOURS MONDIAL DE BRUXELLES reserves the right to cancel the awarded medal, warn the relevant fraud services (or equivalent) and expel the implicated producers from all competitions organised by SPIRITS SELECTION BY CONCOURS MONDIAL DE BRUXELLES for five years.

Section 8 - Classification and storage of entries

After the registration documents have been checked and the accuracy of entries for each category ascertained, the entries are divided into flights and presented to the judging panels by vintage in decreasing order, and increasing order of ABV and sugar content.

Section 9 - Designation of judges

1. The entries are evaluated by committees composed of judges whose number depends on the number and type of products entered in the competition. SPIRITS SELECTION BY CONCOURS MONDIAL DE BRUXELLES convenes and designates judges.

2. There must be a mixture of geographical origins of judges within the same panel.
3. Each panel comprises, in principle, 6 judges. In no event can the number be less than 5. Judges have proven tasting abilities.
4. Each panel is placed under the authority of a chair person appointed by SPIRITS SELECTION BY CONCOURS MONDIAL DE BRUXELLES, who is responsible for the smooth running of the tastings and checks the quality of spirits served and the score sheets and allocation of points.

Section 10 - Panel chair's duties

The panel chair person's duty is to ensure the smooth progress of the tasting of entries and:

1. ensure the anonymity of the spirits;
2. order a second tasting of a sample if it is deemed necessary.

Section 11 - Organization of the session

The organizing committee of SPIRITS SELECTION BY CONCOURS MONDIAL DE BRUXELLES, which comprises an operations director and a managing director, organizes the distribution of entries between the panels and the order in which the tasting sessions are held.

Section 12 – General functioning of the panels

1. Discipline - As anonymity is a fundamental principle of the competition:
 - a. During the tasting judges are required to keep silent and avoid gestures or facial expressions that might give away their impressions.
 - b. Before the serving of each entry, the score sheets that are handed out may bear technical information relative to the entry. These sheets may also bear the panel number and judge's name.
 - c. The staff that collects the sheets ensures they have been correctly filled out. The chairman then signs them for validation.
 - d. Judges cannot keep a copy.
 - e. Judges are not allowed to know the identification of a spirit, its origins, price, points or awards, thus respecting total anonymity.

2. Mode of operation

- Once the panels have been formed, they are convened prior to the tasting for one or more meetings in order to explain the purpose of their mission. A group tasting afterwards compares the results of each judge to balance the evaluation criteria of each judge.
- a. The panels are seated in a well aired, well lit and quiet hall where entry is prohibited to any person not involved in the tasting sessions. Where possible the temperature is kept at between 18°C and 22°C. Smoking is not allowed.
 - b. A second hall next door, referred to as the preparation hall, but out of the judges' sight is reserved for uncorking samples and protecting anonymity. Smoking is not allowed here either.
 - c. The filling of glasses is done in the preparation hall out of the judges' sight.
 - d. In all cases, the bottles are first placed in a sleeve that hides

- the shape of the bottle and guarantees entry anonymity.
- e. The tasting sessions are held preferably in the mornings. Each tasting is done at a rate of thirty-five samples at most per day.
 - f. SPIRITS SELECTION BY CONCOURS MONDIAL DE BRUXELLES guarantees optimal conditions for judges.
 3. Presentation of the spirits. Each spirit is tasted individually and is not compared.

Section 13 – Order and temperature of presented spirits

1. The purpose of distributing the spirits is to introduce panels to consistent flights of products. These flights are examined in a rational order decided upon by the organizing committee in accordance with article 11.
2. Every morning before the first tasting session, it is recommended that a spirit of the same type as the flight planned is presented to the tasters for palate calibration. This is not a competing spirit. The tasting is then discussed by all.
3. The greatest efforts are made to ensure that the spirits are tasted at adequate serving temperatures. It is essential that all entries in the same category and the same flight be tasted at the same temperature.

Section 14 – Description of the score sheet

At the same time as the sample is served, each judge receives the matching score sheet. The sheet should state information on the organoleptic characteristics, according to the sample provided. It must also specify the panel number and show the chair person's signature.

Section 15 – Judges' role

Judges check or complete the information on the sheets pertaining to the entry.

After sensory analysis of each sample the judge ticks the boxes on every line that match the appreciation of a given character. He/she then writes any observations in the space reserved and hands his/her sheet to the panel chair. The judge's opinion is final.

Section 16 – Results transcription and calculation

SPIRITS SELECTION BY CONCOURS MONDIAL DE BRUXELLES translates into numbers the qualifying assessments from the judges' score sheets.

When a sample is rated as 'eliminated' for one or more categories it is automatically classified as 'eliminated' and therefore cannot, under any circumstances, compete for an award.

Each entry is scored using the methodology of the winzored mean of all tasters of the jury panel.

Section 17 – Award distribution

1. The Grand Gold Medal, Gold Medal and Silver Medal entries which, during the tasting and for each category, have received a number of points in accordance with the methodology for medal distribution, are awarded the following:

- Grand Gold Medal
- Gold Medal
- Silver Medal

The sum of all medals awarded to entries scoring the most points cannot exceed 30% of the total of entries in the competition. In the event of an overrun, entries receiving the least points will be eliminated.
